“ A over a year later and here I am still trying to process you being gone. You Lindsey where an amazing person so kind and loving. When you entered the room everybody knew you where there and that beautiful smile that made me weak in the knees. I just can't seem to let you go I'm not sure if it's because of what happened or because you should still be here working with me at cracker barrel going on dates meeting up with your family for dinner and endless laughs to giving me a tattoo that you drew yourself. Reading your obituary more then a year later has me sobbing I know we wasn't together when you passed but I know in my heart our journey wasn't over I'm angry sad miserable and still can't seem to let things go it shouldn't of happened seems like when you left this world mine froze I love you baby girl I'll find you I promise.
