“ I know it's been a while again but I'm back. I am finally legally able to drive on the road and have been working hard. Wish you were here to see everyone and everything. I know time flies but it feels like it was just the other day we were celebrating the holidays and eating away till our stomachs were stuff full of my mom's delicious food. I'm not hoping to see you as soon as I wish and ik you'll have to hear me yap when I see you again but I love you so much and miss you bunches dad.

“ Hey, I dont know if anyone looks at these anymore. Its been a few years and I would like to say he was an amazing dad. I remember have Christmas in the middle of summer, going to the beach.. And ofc those silly golf balls we just had to collect. I still have the seashells I got while at the beach with him. That, and the 6 foot stuffed monkey I bought with the money he gave me for my bday.. He always was there to help me and my family. I hope youre up in the clouds riding some motorcycle or it least messing with people down here. It gets pretty boring

“ So sorry to hear this.
Pete was one of my first Boy Scouts when I became the Scoutmaster of Troop 525 at the 2nd U.P. Church in Cambridge. He was larger than life. One of the bigger and taller boys of the Troop, he was also one of the toughest. During a snowy winter camp out in January 1979, I emerged from my tent one morning to find Pete standing in the mud around the fire, no shirt, bib overalls and bare feet, squishing the mud between his toes. He was cooking a skillet full of about everything that was left in camp, which he ate. He always called me “Old Man.”
Over the years I would see him, usually at Starfire, putting gas in his motorcycle. He always asked me, “How you doing Old Man?”
RIP Pete. 🙏

“ My introduction to Pete was in the 8th grade. We were in art class sitting on the steps and we were supposed to be drawing trees. Some ants were bothering me so I squashed them. Pete hit me with a ruler and told me to stop said that they could be some of his relatives. Rest well Pete.
