“ I’m so sorry for your loss. In the days to come, know we are here for you in any way you need. We love you! Candella’s

*God saw you getting tired
And a cure was not to be
So he put His arms around you
And whispered “Come to me.”*

*With tearful eyes we watched you
As you slowly slipped away
And though we loved you dearly
We couldn’t make you stay.*

*Your golden heart stopped beating
Your tired hands put to rest
God broke our hearts to prove to us
He only takes the best*

“ Susie and Kelly: my husband Marty and your dad were friends from grade school until Marty’s death. After they retired, they would have breakfast every Thursday and then go golfing. It wasn’t long until classmates started joining them and the group grew, but it started with the two of them. Your mom passed away shortly after Marty did and your dad and I shared the loss of our lifetime companions. We spoke often and your dad was a loving and caring individual. One evening while having dinner, he told me that we would meet them again. That it would not be the same, but that we would be with them. I’m sure he is now at peace and with those that he loved and those that loved him. I will miss him. Tammy Goodfriend

“Tom was my brother-in-law, but I knew him before my sister and he were married. Another friend and I were together one day when we saw Tom outside of his parent's home. Tom was tearing down an old, out building which was close to falling down on its own. My other friend and I stopped by to talk with Tom. Tom kept working, but chatted with us, too. As we were talking, Tom's mom stuck her head out the back door and said, "Tom, there's a lot of mice running out from under that old building. I'm worried about them not having anywhere to go to be safe." Tom didn't miss a beat. He said, "Don't worry mom, they'll probably run right under our house to be safe." Mrs. Pepper sort of shrieked and hurried back into the house. We laughed for about half an hour. I'm going to miss Tom, but I know he's in a happier place. RIP, "Pep".
